

ABI information to consumers on predicted flooding: 19 November 2009

Nick Starling, the ABI's Director of General Insurance and Health, said: "With heavy rain predicted to cause flooding across parts of Wales and northern England over the next few days, if flooding is forecast, listen to the regular weather updates for your area; wherever practical and safe to do so move what you can to any upper floors; and keep essential contact numbers, including household and motor insurers, local authority and utility companies, together and waterproof. Insurers will be closely monitoring the situation, and will be ready to deal with any claims quickly."
