

Savings adequacy – how much is enough and who’s missing out?

Tuesday 21 June 2022

Savings adequacy continues to dominate the debate about workplace pensions and the quality of the UK pensions system.

This event will look at emerging and potential future policy solutions to plug the adequacy gap. This includes looking at future automatic pension transfer solutions to reduce the level of small pots in light of the industry’s work; what the future for automatic enrolment looks like as we get closer to the Government’s committed deadline for expanding the eligibility criteria; and whether the current tax relief system provides the right incentives to save.

It will also explore how much customers should aim to save, given uncertainty about longer lives and care costs; and how AE2.0 can adapt to help self-employed and under-pensioned people build emergency savings and a pension.

Join us at this critical moment as policy-makers weigh up decisions about the future of savings at work.

10:30	Registration
11:00	Welcome &amp; introduction
	Hannah Gurga, Director General, ABI
11:05	Keynote Address One
	TBC, Frontier Economics
11:35	Panel One: How much is enough?
	Chair: TBC <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Rob Barker, Aviva</li> <li>• Chris Curry, Director, Pensions Policy Institute</li> <li>• Katherine Chapman, Director, Living Wage Foundation</li> </ul>
12:20	Screen break
13:05	Welcome back
	TBC, ABI
13:10	Keynote Address Two
	TBC
13:40	Panel Two: Who’s missing out?
	Chair: TBC <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Andy Chamberlain, IPSE</li> <li>• Will Sandbrook, Managing Director, Nest Insight</li> <li>• Emma Watkins, Managing Director of Retirement and Longstanding, Scottish Widows</li> </ul>
14:25	Concluding Remarks
	TBC, ABI
14:30	Close